

The Muse Writers Center's Statement on Diversity, Equity, & Inclusion

The Muse Writers Center is committed to being a diverse, equitable, and inclusive nonprofit organization.

We will be inclusive of all persons and not limited by race, ethnicity, class, sex, gender, gender identity, transgender status, marital status, age, sexuality, pregnancy, disability, medical condition, education, spiritual beliefs, creed, culture, tribal affiliations, national origin, political beliefs, veteran status, and/or financial means.

The Muse will strive to reflect on and celebrate the diverse and distinct cultures and values held by our students, teachers, staff, board, volunteers, participants, and attendees, while being mindful and acknowledging the disparities, inequities, advantages, and disadvantages that exist and have existed in their experiences.

As an organization, we will promote opportunity and access for all to our classes, events, programs, services, and outreach. For any classes with an associated tuition fee, financial assistance will always be available.
